

The Architecture Collection

Twenty-eight films explore the debates and challenges animating contemporary architecture and design — now available for streaming in one collection.

Docuseek2 offers The Architecture Collection, twenty-eight acclaimed documentaries exploring the diverse world of contemporary architecture and design, available now for academic streaming.

The works in this collection examine the range of the architectural experience, from aboriginal forms and mud construction to cutting edge contemporary forms and green design. Renowned architects including I.M. Pei, Bill McDonough, Rem Koolhaas and Santiago Calatrava discuss their principles and practices.

The films discover architecture in its social and political contexts: an ambitious plan to create a new urban blueprint for Paris; the construction of a giant mall outside of New York City; a reinterpretation of the sprawling capital of Nigeria; the challenges of creating ecologically sustainable communities.

Together, the collection provides a rich historical and cross-cultural overview of design and construction — and an essential guide to the ideas guiding them in the 21st century.
